Presentation: Containerized Software by Kirk Harnack of the Telos Alliance

Presentation Summary: Containerized software powers audio mixing, processing and distribution. "Virtualization" has been a buzzword and a partial solution for broadcasters wishing to back up their physical studios and transmitter links. But virtualization can itself introduce extra maintenance and upkeep, as well as some inefficiencies, that have led to hesitation among broadcasters in implementation. A new form of virtualization is here and proven by nearly a decade of experience. It's called "software containerization."
